The Press-Spectator of last week makes complaint because the Salisbury public school sent out of town for its commencement programs. The complaint is a just one, and if the Press-Spectator devotes any considerable amount of its space, unless it is paid for at regular rates, to a write-up of the commencement exercises we shall regard the editors of the P.-S. as "dead easy" and sadly wanting in "spunk."

The Sumner Star says: Several members of the Baptist church, assisted by a few others, called on Mrs. Hulda Burton last Friday with well-filled baskets, their object being to give the good lady a "boost" with her spring work. The delegation was in charge of Messrs. Diehl and Underwood, and all went to work in good fashion. The men folks sawed wood, pruned trees and cut sprouts; the ladies raked, burned and cleaned the yard. It is needless to say that all enjoyed the dinner and the day in general, and there was no one so well pleased as Mrs. Burton, who informs us that in addition to the work done for her, eight of her neighbors had each sent her a hen, some with little bidies coming. Thus you see the righteous are never forgotten at Cunningham.

One morning last week C. L. Mounts of Hale told his wife, who was not feeling well, that he would get breakfast and let her stay in bed. Si got busy and even performed the stunt of making biscuits. Taking a tablespoonful of something that looked like the famous "Cow Brand" of soda from a box and dumping it into the flour Sison had a roll of dough as large as an inflated hog bladder, and in less time than it has taken us to tell this he had 17 innocent looking biscuits in the pan. Something kept telling Si he had made a mistake so he said to his wife: "You keep your soda in that box, don't you?" "No. That's Rub-no-more," replied his wife. "Thunder," replied Si "and I have already swallowed 13 of them! Do you reckon they will kill me?" Well, DeWitt's Little Early risers are not in it at all, but the only objection to Rub-no-more as a medicine is, everything tastes like soap suds and one's spit all turns to bubbles.
